CONVENTIONS BRING FLOW OF NEW MONEY

Convention Scene. Insets: Delegates at Leisure.

Conventions can be counted and measured in telling figures. From eighty-five conventions with an attendance of 60,000 in 1927, yielding dividends of $2,400,000, to 183 conventions in 1932 with an attendance of 118,000 and yielding a cash dividend of nearly five million dollars, is a long stride in the way of getting convention crowds to Los Angeles County. But that is the accomplishment of the Convention Department of the Los Angeles County Chamber of Commerce in co-operation with other convention bureaus.

The convention dollar is not a return mainly to a few business groups but distributes itself widely throughout the community and lends its strength in millions yearly to maintain employment and the stabilization of our values.

Conventions bring new money into this territory. They also bring selected people, as delegates or friends, financed in advance out of other communities.

These convention attendants carry the message of Los Angeles and Southern California back to the communities from which they come. Upon their arrival home they become walking, talking and writing advertisers of the things they saw and what they did while here.

Conventions offer the most favorable opportunity for relatives and friends to visit while in attendance. Social and business contacts are made which last throughout a lifetime. The present convention business of the United States and Canada represents a gigantic industry. Every large city is endeavoring to secure its commensurate portion of this enormous cash business. Conventions help all lines of business in all parts of the county.

Points in NRA Blanket Code Clarified in C. of C. Pamphlet

Debatable points in the President's Re-employment Agreement, relating to various phases of the adjustment of labor to employment, have been clarified in a pamphlet sent out by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Briefly, the interpretations are as follows:

Interpretation No. 1, concerning the compensation of wages as set out in paragraph No. 1 of the blanket code, states, first, that the compensation of employees above the minimum wage group (whether now fixed by the hour, day, week or otherwise) shall not be reduced; second, that rates of pay for employees above the minimum wage group shall be increased by "equitable adjustments." For example, if a wage earner was being paid $16 for a 40-hour week, his wages must remain at $16 for the 35-hour week, his hourly rate of pay being thereby increased. Wages must be adjusted on the basis of average compensation, in fairness to the employer, rather than on the basis of seasonal rush or peak orders.

Persons who believe that a particular provision in the Agreement because of peculiar circumstances will create great or unavoidable hardship, may prepare a petition to the N. R. A. asking for a stay of this provision as to him, and submit his petition to his local trade association or, if there is none, to his local Chamber of Commerce for its approval. Their written approval will be the basis of a temporary stay pending a final decision by the N. R. A.

The following groups of employment are not intended to be covered by the Re-employment Agreement:

- Professional occupations.
- Employees of federal, state and local governments and other public institutions and agencies.
- Agricultural labor.
- Domestic servants.
- Persons buying goods and selling them independently of persons selling solely on commission, provided, however, that persons regularly employed to sell on commission, with a base salary or guaranteed compensation, come within the requirements of the Agreement.
- Under the labor code, employees shall have the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, without interference, restraint, or coercion of employers or their agents in the designation of such representatives, self-organization, or other concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or mutual aid and protection. No employee and no one seeking employment shall be required to join any company union or refrain from joining, organizing or assisting a labor organization of his own choosing, as a condition of employment.
- Minors under the age of 16 shall not be employed in a retail establishment, except that persons between the ages of 14 and 16 may be employed not to exceed three hours per day between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. in such work as will not interfere with their attendance at school.
- No individual or organization shall work any employe for more than 40 hours per week, except that at Christmas, inventory and other peak periods, the number of hours may be increased to not more than 48 hours for a maximum of not more than three weeks in any six-months period. Exceptions to this rule are made in the case of executives whose salaries exceed $35 per week, registered pharmacists, or other professional persons employed in their professions, or outside salesmen, and except outside deliverymen and maintenance employes who may be employed 48 hours weekly or more provided they are paid at the rate of time and one-third for all hours over 48 that they are employed in the discharge of their duties. These regulations shall not apply to employes in establishments employing not more than two persons in towns of less than 2500 population, which are not part of a larger trade area.
- Hours of store or any service operation may not be reduced to less than 52 hours in any one week, unless such hours were less than 52 hours per week before July 1, 1933, and in case they were less than 52 hours before that date they may not be reduced at all.
- Minimum wages for the retail trade for the specified work week, shall be within cities of more than 500,000 population, and its immediate trade area, not less than $14 per week. Within cities of from 100,000 to 500,000 population or their immediate trade areas, it shall be not less than $13.50 per week.
- Within villages, towns or cities with a population of 2500 to 100,000 not included in the trade area of a city of a larger bracket of population, not less than $13.00 per week. The federal census of 1930 is made the basis of establishing the number of population for any city. The minimum wage in the food and grocery trades shall be $1.00 more than the above scale.
- The minimum wage in Southern states shall be $1.00 less than the above prices.
- In the entire United States, in cities, towns and villages under 2500 population, all wages to be increased by 20 per cent, provided this increase does not require wages in excess of $11.00 per week, or in the case of food and grocery employes, $12.00 per week.
- Employers are warned not to use any subterfuge to frustrate the spirit and intent of the Agreement, which has for its purpose the increase of employment, removal of obstructions to commerce, and to shorten hours and increase wages to a living basis.
- Merchants and producers of manufactured goods are also warned not to increase the price of any merchandise sold after the date on which the blanket Agreement was signed above the price obtained for the same article on July 1, 1933, by more than is necessary on account of the actual increase in production, operating, replacement or invoice costs, or by taxes or other costs resulting from action taken since July 1, 1933, and in setting such increased prices to take into consideration the probable increases in sales volume and to refrain from taking profiteering advantage of the consuming public.

A complete digest and analysis of the new California sales tax law, covering all detail of the measure from an impartial viewpoint, has been prepared for the Bank of America and is available at the branches of the institution in pamphlet form.

The pamphlet contains a review of the law worded in non-technical language, calculated to clarify the meaning of the measure for all business men and industrial executives to whom it applied.

In the booklet the bank neither approves nor disapproves of any phases of the law, attempting solely to present the subject of the new sales tax in terms readily intelligible to the layman.

DURING the trying years of the Depression when every dollar was needed in many families to meet the bare necessities of sustaining life, the TORRANCE HERALD and LOMITA NEWS has been glad to extend credit to old subscribers. Some folks who have been subscribers for nearly twenty years were obliged to defer making their customary regular payments during recent years. To have taken their names off the list would have been like deserting old friends. Then too, we felt that the savings offered in the newspaper advertisements, particularly the food bargains, would be helpful in making limited funds stretch farther.

But the Depression is passing. Recovery is under way. Payrolls are picking up, and it should be easier now to pay up. Consequently, we are making this special "SAVE-HALF" offer to make it easier for old subscribers to settle their old accounts and again place their subscriptions on a paid-in-advance basis. Take advantage of this exceptional offer before you forget it.
